I. FAMILY OF ABRAHAM AND SUSANNA UMMEL MAURER

Abraham and Susanna Ummel Maurer came to America in 1869 from Chaux-de-fonds, Switzerland. This is the French part of Switzerland; in fact, the home was but three miles from the French border. Neuchatel is the capital city of the canton. But the family is of Germanic origin, having migrated into Switzerland sometime earlier in the nineteenth century.

In religious affiliation the family background is that of the Mennonite church. "The Martyr's Mirror", by Mennonite Publishing House, Scottdale, Pennsylvania, tells of early Reformation terror in the story of this church.

According to Mr. M. E. Maurer, special assistant to the President, Southern Pacific Railroad Co., the name Maurer means stone-mason or wall-builder and is believed to predate the Reformation. Certainly in medieval times towns were walled and many persons living within such walled towns, surely a large number of people, came to be called Maurers. But the name, says Mr. Maurer, was known before the Middle Ages and may go back to Roman times. It is a common name in Switzerland, Germany, France and the Low Countries.

Nine children were born to Abraham and Susanna Ummel Maurer, two of whom, the boys Alexander, died in infancy. The nine children are listed below in order of birth and the Arabic numerals given are followed in succeeding pages:

A. ROSINA (MAURER) SLONEKER

"A Sloneker History and Genealogy" of Sloneker descendants in America since early 1700 was compiled and edited by Dr. James Rollin Sloneker, emeritus professor of physiology, Stanford university, Palo Alto, California. It was printed in 1941 and some copies are still available of the limited edition of 500 from the publisher, Chester S. Lyday, 422 Boyd Street, Los Angeles, California, himself in the family tree of Slonekers. Two copies are in the Library of Congress.

The Slonekers of this branch, as shown on pages 535-548 inclusive of the above work, are descended from Rev. John Schlunegger, who was born in 1777 at Arna, Switzerland, and died in 1814 in Switzerland; he was married in 1799 to Fannie Lichty born 1-24-1779 (calculated) in France, died 2-14-1868, age 89 years, 20 days, in Hamilton county, Ohio. The widow remarried John Ramseyer who died in 1816 in Switzerland. The widow and her children migrated to America and landed in New York, 3-24-1824, and found their way to Pennsylvania. After a short stay in Pennsylvania they moved to Butler county, Ohio. There were six children by the first marriage: Peter, John, Christian, Jacob, Mary and Barbara, and one child, Fannie Ramseyer, by the second marriage. Jacob King Sloneker was the sixth child of Peter Schlunegger, oldest of the six aforementioned. He was born 6-5-1803 in Switzerland and died 11-4-1891 at Wayland, Iowa. He married Jacobina King, born 11-13-1808, in Germany; she died 12-13-1864 at Collinsville, Ohio. Jacob was the sixth of nine children.

They were Christian, John, Joel, Phillip, Jacob, Rosina (Rosina was the grandmother of Laura); and two sisters whose names are not known. Rosina married Mr. Jacob Schmidt. They had three daughters. After Mr. Schmidt died in St. Joseph, Mo., Rosina married Mr. Gus Schuman. They had two girls, one boy. Rosina's daughter Selina married Mr. Henry Marzolf. They had two children. Rosina Maurer Sloneker remembered the trip.

Christian Maurer's sister Anna, married Mr. Joseph Schirmer. They had thirteen children, several of whom died in infancy. One member of this family is still living -- the youngest daughter, Mary, who was a missionary to the Hopi Indians for over thirty years in Arizona, and is now Mrs. Abe Baumgartner, aged seventy-two, of Elkland, Mo.

One daughter, Emilie Schirmer, married Abraham Henry Regier, who was born near Elbing, Kansas, on 11-16-1878. Emilie Schirmer was born in Germany, just across from the Swiss border. She visited Illinois relatives a number of times.

IV. SUPPLEMENT

MAGIC SWITZERLAND

(Written by Frank T. Kauffman in "Mennonite Weekly Review", Newton, Kansas, May 14, 1953.)

Switzerland, astride the Alps, the "roof" of Europe, is the homeland of the antecedents of many American Mennonites.

This enchanted country, the scene of Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon", of the old League of Nations at Geneva, the International Red Cross and World Health Organization and at Davos-Grissons of Thomas Mann's "The Magic Mountain" is a model of unity in diversity. The confederation, dating from 1291, has 22 cantons, each of which is sovereign, except for powers vested in the Federal Government, whose seat is Berne.

Of the 4,600,000 inhabitants, about 73 per cent speak German, 21 per cent speak French and 5 per cent speak Italian. About 60 per cent of the population is Protestant and the remainder Catholic. Population density is 282 persons per square mile.

With a national motto of "One for all and all for one", tiny Switzerland (15,938 square miles) has become a model country. Its trains are electrified and its economy stable.

Drawing interest this year (1953) again is the 37th annual Swiss Industries Fair, held from April 11 to 21 at Basel. This exhibition covers 14 halls with 1,000,000 square feet of floor space. Last year there were 650,000 visitors and 2,200 exhibitors.

This Fair paces the continued expansion of Swiss industry. Where in 1937 there were 8,365 factories, there were 11,529 in 1951. Swiss electrical machinery frequently wins bids for big industrial and urban projects in the United States.

At the present rate of exchange about 4.35 Swiss francs are equal to an American dollar.

Among universities, Switzerland has the three German-language institutions at Zurich, Basel and Berne. At Lausanne, Geneva and Neuchatel universities, instruction is in French. The Catholic university at Fribourg (the other six are non-sectarian) is bi-lingual, using both German and French. The Swiss Federal Institute of Technology in Zurich and the Swiss School of Economic and Public Administration in St. Gall serve the whole country.

At any one time, one person in 20 in Switzerland is a tourist and guest, and the tourist business ranks first in the country. What is that magic that draws millions to this enchanted, vaulted land, where peace and freedom remain undefiled. Here's a statement from Mark Twain in "Letters to Harris":

"O Switzerland! The further it recedes into the enriching haze of time, the more intolerably delicious the charm of it and the cheer of it and the glory and majesty and solemnity and pathos of it grow...There are mountains and mountains and mountains in this world, but only these take you by the heartstrings. I wonder what the secret of it is? Time and time again it has seemed to me that I must drop everything and flee to Switzerland once more. It is a longing, a deep strong, tugging longing--that is the word. We must go again, Joe."

One of several letters received from Thomas Mann.

Champaign, Illinois

Dear Mr. Kauffman:

As you are a graduate student at the University of Illinois and of Mennonite stock, I wish that I were not so over-charged with work and could write to you fully on the subject of the Amish and Mennonite groups in the United States, which you mentioned in your interesting letter of September 2nd.

A few thoughts occur to me which I can perhaps put briefly. The fact that the original Mennonite reformers denied civil authority to a great extent and sought to cultivate their religious life apart from the world may possibly account a little for whatever difficulty the modern Mennonites have in becoming fully a part of the life of the countries which gave their forefathers sanctuary. As regards the German Mennonites, do you not think that the original character of the German people had many good qualities - such as integrity, industriousness, and independence - and may it not be that the Germans over a long period of years have contributed to the American way of life in certain respects, while appearing to lack some of the democratic virtues in another?

Yours sincerely,

/s/ Thomas Mann

An excerpt from "What is German?", essay by Thomas Mann, published in May, 1944, "Atlantic Monthly":

"The non-social Ur-poetry is in fact Germany's own special myth, its typical and fundamental national nature, which differentiates it from the other European national minds and types."

"His work (Wagner's "The Ring of the Nibelung"), is the German contribution to the monumental art of the nineteenth century, which took the form in other nations, primarily, of great social-poetical novels---Dickens, Thackeray, Tolstoy, Dostoevski, Balzac, Zola. These monumental works that reveal a similar tendency toward moral grandeur were par excellence, the European nineteenth century, the literary world of social critique."

In his "The Permanent Goethe", Thomas Mann, quoting Goethe, states it is not constitution, in terms of the Federal Government, that presents any future difficulties, but stupidity in the use of constitution.

An excerpt from the "Mission of Music", by Thomas Mann, published in "New York Times" magazine of March 19, 1944:

"The most beautiful heritage we owe to Greek humanism is that cultural concept which insists on a pious and sanctifying inclusion of the powers of darkness in the cult of the gods."

"If the world is music, conversely music is the reflection of the world, of a cosmos pervaded with demoniac forces. Music is number, the worship of number, hallowed computation, resonant algebra."
